Extending your solution helps you deliver more impact. So you can find cost-effective ways to boost productivity and reduce risk. So you can get better visibility into spending and create efficient, compliant processes that elevate the employee experience. And so your entire company can reach its potential.

Remember the days when you understood every spending category and all the processes that went with them? Or when you had enough people to help you do your job?

Now, there are new work-from-home and travel expenses that need more oversight, but fewer staff to stay on top of it. And on top of that, your finance and accounting teams are being pulled into planning discussions that take up more precious time.

So how do you add capacity without adding headcount?

- Automate reimbursements and corporate card payments to cut tasks out of your day. Once an expense claim is approved, automatically retrieves the funds, pays electronically, and validates the expense.
